

Striking gold at the

Del Norte County Fair

The Del Norte County Fairgrounds is an economic, social and cultural treasure for local communities. In 2002, the fair contributed more than $1.6 million in economic impact to Del Norte County, created 18 local jobs and generated $10,494 in local tax revenues.^{1 2 3}

The 41st District Agricultural Association — the legal body governing the fair and fairgrounds — is a state entity. However, the fair organization does not receive money from the state general fund. Rather, it is funded through revenues it generates locally and $180,000 it receives annually from a licensing fee on wagers placed on horse racing. Pari-mutuel wagering on horse racing in California was allowed through a constitutional amendment in 1933, with a portion of the revenues designated to support the network of California fairs.

The California Department of Food and Agriculture's Division of Fairs and Expositions engaged the firm of KPMG LLP to measure the annual economic and social impacts of the Del Norte County Fair and produce a report detailing their findings.⁴ Based on information presented in this report, the fair organization should be considered a gold mine for their community and the Golden State.

Economic Impact: At the Assayer's Office

In 2002, the fair organization created significant economic impacts on the local economy.

- Overall impact of spending by all participants at fairtime and year-round events resulted in a total economic impact on the county of more than $1.6 million.

- Each dollar spent by the fair organization and year-round event participants generates an estimated 19 cents of additional spending in the county, for a total impact of $1.19 per dollar spent.

Agriculture: The Gold Nugget

A central feature of the fair is to educate people about the importance of agriculture in California.

- Fifty-three percent of fairgoers felt that they knew more about agriculture after going to the fair.
- The fair is a critical part of the local junior livestock program, which educates young people about the breeding, raising and grooming of farm animals. The junior livestock auction at the fair grossed $120,662, with 81 animals purchased by 119 buyers.
- During 2002, the fair judged 2,661 exhibits, including 441 agricultural exhibits. This resulted in $6,030 paid in prize money to fair participants.

- In 2002, nonprofit groups raised $24,317 at the Del Norte County Fairgrounds for community programs and services.
- Include the $120,662 raised at the junior livestock auction, and a total of $144,939 was raised for community benefits.

Attendees: A Golden Treasure

Californians love their fairs and fairground events.

- Fairtime attendance was 26,500 in 2002, and year-round events attracted another 17,430 people. Total annual attendance at the Del Norte County Fairgrounds was 43,930, which represents 156 percent of the county's population.
- Year-round events demonstrate how well-planned and creative programming can generate community involvement and local revenues. Attendee spending at year-round events totaled $217,845.
- The average visitor attends the fair 2 times per year and lives within 100 miles.

Social and Cultural Impacts: Giving Back

While the economic impact of the fair is remarkable, it is the social and cultural impacts that may leave the most lasting impression on Californians.

- The fair provides a focal point for community members to celebrate their heritage, compete in a variety of events, hold family reunions, display and view artwork, learn about other cultures, premier new inventions, and showcase the best of California.
- Eighty-eight percent of attendees agreed that the fair provided worthwhile community benefits.

Conclusion: A Golden Legacy

As this profile of the Del Norte County Fair illustrates, fairs entertain and educate, but they also have immense economic, educational, social and cultural impacts. Economic impacts range from spending by attendees and businesses to nonprofit fundraising to job creation and to tax revenues. From people's paychecks to community services, the return on investment from fairs is widespread.

Fairs, however, represent much more than dollars-and-cents. Fairs offer a link between urban and rural California. They serve as tools for educating Californians about the importance of agriculture and introducing young people to both traditional and innovative aspects of life on the farm.

Fairs reach far beyond their agrarian roots and encourage industries and individuals to strive for excellence through competitions. Winning the blue ribbon at a fair competition is a great incentive to showcase the best of California.

Finally, through their social and cultural impacts, fairs embody the community spirit and highlight the diversity of the Golden State.
